
We need to trust that God actually cares about, AND can use our work for His glory.

We need to believe that spiritual work is not limited to what occurs within the building of the church.

How you work and the attitude you show impacts the way others view the Lord.

Believers are called to be willing servants of God

Even if an employer was harsh or unfair, honor is still to be shown.

The Gospel is rendered powerless when a lost world cannot see the fruit of the Spirit alive in the child of God.

There can be a temptation to expect special privileges because of the relationship that exists between believers in the work place.

We are called to be obedient in the work place so as to give witness that God's grace has transformed our lives.

We give God praise when we give Him the best of who we are in all that we do.