

Both parent and child have a sin nature. If we do not seek the Lord, we will fail in shepherding our children.

Parenting a child involves the narrowing of their conduct away from evil and towards godliness.

Proverbs 22:6 reminds us that we are called to train our children according to who they are. Learn who your children are and guide them with the truth of His Word.

The focus of punishment is on the past — what you've done wrong.

The focus of discipline is on the future — what you can be.

Children, the wise accept their parent's discipline.

Discipline always targets the heart.

A unhappy child is a healthy child.

The home is the greatest place for your children to learn about the Lord.

Children, know that parents who discipline are a gift from God.
